FEATURE WRITER ADDED TO STAFF FAST GROWTH DICTATES CHANGES IN CTA

During the past six weeks of publication, we have been watching with great amazement, the growth we have experienced in circulation in that short time. At the same time keeping an eye on the amount of advertising placed by the over 4,000 collectors who receive Coin Trade Advertiser each week.

After many hours and days of self examination, it has been concluded that we must lay the facts clearly before you, the collectors of North America. We have letters from many of you expressing faith and confidence that what we are trying to do is right, but we feel that we must make our position very clear to you.

In ascertaining our future as a Numismatic publication, we have run into some problems in a very short time, due to the rapid rise in circulation and addition of personnel to the staff.

When laying the groundwork for Coin Trade Advertiser, and trying to keep our rates competitive with others in the field, our advertising scale, which was submitted to us and approved by us, has proved so low it precludes meeting our publishing and mailing costs, and developing into the type of publication we wish to become.

In other words, much to our regret, we must raise our advertising rates. But, even with the increase in rates, you will still be paying the lowest rates asked by any weekly numismatic publication.

In the first issue of Coin Trade Advertiser we stated, "Coin Trade Advertiser rates are good for one full year. Only if advertising volume is so low to preclude meeting publishing costs will it be necessary to raise our rates."

Frankly, our advertising has not been up to expectations, plus the additional personnel needed to get the paper to you. In addition, as we stated, we are adding experts to our writing staff; these numismatic educators must be paid for their time put into research and writing. The advertising placed by you pays these people their salaries.

We have, as you will note, included in this issue the new rates which will become effective 1 December 1961.

Any advertising coming into this office postmarked prior to that date will run as many weeks as the advertiser wishes, at the old rates. All advertising postmarked after 1 December will be at the new rates.

To the over 4,000 collectors who have indicated their interest in Coin Trade Advertiser, and are receiving it at the present time, we will continue to send the publication free up to and including the issue of November 30, 1961. This also includes those who request the paper between now and November 30.

If the present 4,000 plus collectors, and those who request Coin Trade Advertiser between now and November 30th, wish to continue receiving Coin Trade Advertiser after November 30th, and we hope they will, we must ask for a 75c subscription fee for the remaining 44 weeks.

All other collectors not on our mailing list as of November 30, 1961, will be asked to pay a subscription fee of $1.25 per year. This is less than 2½c per copy.

We started out to give you a subscription free publication, but we have been forced by the tremendous growth in just a few weeks to ask you to pay for the paper. The 2½c per copy we ask from you will help pay postage.

Believe us when we tell you that we do not want to do this, but if we are to continue to serve you, as it is our desire to do, we must ask for your understanding and continued interest.

Within a few days we are going to receive some well deserved criticisms — questions such as, "What is to keep you from raising your rates again?" Frankly, nothing, except good common sense and willingness of the dedicated personnel who feel that Coin Trade Advertiser is their future, and are willing to sacrifice deeply for its survival and success.

Experience has taught us what expert advisors failed to get across. But in order to grow, one must be willing to make sacrifice, and have confidence in those one is trying so hard to serve.

We are not satisfied with being just another coin publication, it is now, as it has always been, our intention to give you the very best possible numismatic publication your money can buy. Sacrifice we will make, and our labors are yours for the asking, all we need is your continued support and loyalty.

We have confidence that you will give us the support necessary to provide you with the very best, and permit us to continue to serve our first love, Numismatics.

FOREIGN COIN EXPERT JOINS THE STAFF

A. L. Almanzar joins the staff of Coin Trade Advertiser this week. A numismatist who specializes in foreign coins, Al will contribute a monthly column on the subject.

Al has served in the U.S. Air Force for nine years; he took part in the Battle of Pork Chop Hill and Old Baldy during the Korean conflict. For his action on Old Baldy, he was awarded Columbia's Distinctive de Combat award, while acting as an interpreter for the Columbian Battalion.

He also spent four years in England with the U.S. Air Force. It was here he first started collecting. He soon became a member of various numismatic organizations and studied British coins.

It was during his tour in England that Al became the owner of the rare 1921 Canadian five cent piece. He was a surprised and pleased collector when he discovered this coin was worth, at that time, $400. He still owns the coin, and tells us it is now valued at over $1,400.

Almanzar is a lover and an avid student of foreign coins. His own personal collection contains over 19,000 types of coins and paper money of the world. Through his study and research, he has prepared a "Check List of Modern and Medieval Countries". This check list contains 24 pages, lists over 600 countries. It is now in its second edition.

The information Al will contribute to these pages will prove informative and rewarding. It will fill a gap in Numismatics that has long been neglected in our country.

We welcome Al Almanzar to the staff; we are sure his factual and up to the minute reporting will be well received by collectors everywhere.

COLLECTORS' CORNER

WHAT DO YOU COLLECT?

By Leona Dockery

Do you find that you now have several sets of U.S. minor coins nearly complete? Are your finds few and far between?

A visit to your local coin shop will be informative; you will find some of your wants in desirable grades, but you'll also find that the keys are either not in stock or are selling at prices considerably over what you expect to pay. If you are about to give up on the aforementioned coins, how about a new field? Try type collecting, it's interesting and I believe not nearly so discouraging. Some of the obsolete U.S. type coins you probably already have in your junk box, and other specimens you know of are in someone else's accumulation.

Most dealers have several choice type coins under their counter at reasonable prices. You will also find the new book form albums offer attractive housing.

Many people find obsolete coins appeal to them, but collecting a complete series by date is impracticable, if not impossible. So type collecting offers the best solution.

Now start searching. You'll soon have a good start. You will enjoy showing your set to acquaintances. You also find that you have coins that are seldom seen by the average non-collector, and you'll have beautiful pieces of our nation's history. A set to be proud of.

MONET-AL

By Al Almanzar

This is only the first of a number of articles I have in store for you, which I hope you enjoy reading. You will learn how interesting and educational it can be to collect foreign coins. Behind every coin there is a story, and to know many of these stories makes it an even more fascinating hobby. To own these coins can make interesting conversational pieces which will make you a true numismatist.

As an American, I take pride in my country's coins. As a numismatist, I am aware of their beauty and the history they hold. I collect them by types, but foreign coins still are my first love.

When I was a beginner in this field, I was shocked to hear from collectors, and read from coin magazines and newspapers, the emphasis that was placed upon coins that can be picked up from circulation. So little was being said or done about all the other beautiful, and no less historical, foreign coins that I had handled in my travels abroad. I saved a few of these pieces, for sentimental reasons mainly, and had placed them in a box. At a glance they brought memories of the places I had visited, and at closer examination they took me back into history, some as far back as the Roman Empire, and some as close as the coronation of Elizabeth II, Queen of Great Britain, and even the Brussels World Fair.

How then is it possible that collectors in this country neglected for so long, the beauty, history, and such good representations of the countries of the world? For beautiful many of them are—like the palm tree cent, from the tropical island of the Dominican Republic, the peacock rupee from Burma, or the commemorative pieces of our Mexican neighbors. Why then should these not play a part in every coin collection?

Why is it that so many collectors have allowed themselves to collect by the same pattern of adding date after date of the same type coin which can be found in everyday circulation? Why not try to acquire a British maundy set, or for that matter, add to their collection a nucleus of the 30 to 40 thousand coins of the world still available from ten to twenty-five cents each. Many can be bought from dealers in this country and others procured from friends or dealers around the world.

A type collection of about 10,000 minor coins of the world, including many of our own country, could be put together for about the same price as that of a choice complete date collection of Indian head cents. Of course you may have to do without the "pieces of eight", the gold, and rare colonial coins, but you can console yourself in thinking that if one could get all the coins wanted, half the fun of collecting would be gone.

Not long ago I decided to try and procure a set of coins from Kuwait—one of the youngest free states. I had no idea where to begin, not knowing anyone over there, so in final desperation I wrote to His Highness, the Emir of the State of Kuwait. After a brief waiting period I received a letter from the government giving me bank names and places where I could purchase the coins. It will take a couple of letters and perhaps a month or two before I actually have the coins, but that is all in the fun of coin collecting.

Commemorative pieces often appear on the market, and some countries, which for centuries have been issuing coins of a less interesting design, are now minting them with attractive designs, many times with the collector in mind.

So many collectors believe that foreign coins do not make a sound investment—if you believe this you must not miss my next article. I will be citing coins which have doubled their value in less than two years, some of which are wrongly listed for as low as 20c are now bringing as much as $2.00 each in average condition. I will give you facts and figures every collector should know—on the low mintage coins of Puerto Rico, which so far, to the best of my knowledge, has not been printed in English.

How about it; will you start your foreign coin collection today? If you wish to collect coins that have birds, ships, elephants, or animals on them, there are hundreds of these. Maybe it will be dollar size, quarter size, or dime size coins. If it's just the coins with monarchs on them there are plenty of these, too, also the commemoratives. How about Roman, Greek, medieval, modern, British, Indian, the old countries, the new, the colonies . . . why not try collecting them all?

A COLLECTOR ANSWERS

In my column for the October 19th issue, I gave my opinion and views on the use of chemicals for restoring dates to coins.

I said in essence, that the use of chemicals for the restoration of dates to coins should be confined to, and used for study only, further, that to offer a restored date for sale to another collector was wrong.

Mr. Wendel Deller of Eugene, Oregon, sends his views on the subject. I quote from Mr. Deller's letter.

I just received a bottle of coin restorer and have come up with a most astounding accumulation of rare date Buffaloes from "smoothies" I have accumulated over the years.

Perhaps we might think along the lines of other hobbyists. Should the Mediterranean Scrolls have been forgotten?

Should we have left Valley Forge, Lincoln's birthplace or even the old homestead? Why bother with Independence Hall? These are but a pittance of restorations that have been done, and there is still more to do.

What about the restoration of antiques? Just because an old lamp chimney has been broken, we don't display the lamp without a chimney, if we can find another. A friend recently restored an old 1909 Case auto and it's simply gorgeous.

These old coins that can be restored will never be made again. It is our duty to see that restoration is done and that they are advertised as restored date coins. I can name five of the largest coin companies in the world, who are, and have been, restoring coins for years. Not with a date restorer, but with other means, and in a higher category, they do a beautiful job.

Recently I sold a 1901S Barber quarter in EF with a gouge in the cheek. I saw the coin after restoration and there were few who could detect the job. It was worthy of restoration and to get it into a collection of distinction.

Restoration may create a temporary price change in the semi-keys of lower grade, but it will never be a situation that will get out of hand near as bad as

MONEY FACTS*STORY OF A ROBBERY

(Last week we learned how two men stole $20,000 in new ten dollar notes from the division of issues, right from under the noses of the officials in this section of the Treasury. We continue.)

Mr. Root, the division head, followed his friends, accompanied by the thief, with the money, the whole length of the room to the lowest door, out of which the thief passed. The money was missed within the hour, but there was no suspicion that it had been stolen. The first clue that there had been a robbery came when a messenger mentioned the two strangers. This resulted in questioning those present at the time the money was stolen. When it was concluded without a doubt that a robbery had actually taken place, telegraphic messages were sent to other cities.

Advertisements of the robbery were sent to every bank, banker and broker, and to all newspaper publishers in the United States and the British colonies in America, stating the fact of the robbery, describing the notes, and that no new ten dollar note of a number higher than H 3,236,000* had been issued. The intervening notes were held in the division of issues.

On the 28th of June, 1870, a letter bearing the date of the day before was received at this office, from the Stuyvesant Bank in the city of New York, stating that one of their dealers had deposited on that day, $1,500 in United States ten dollar notes, coming within the numbers and series which were in the lot of $20,000 stolen from the Treasury Department. Colonel Whiteley of the Secret Service of the Department, being in New York at the time, was immediately informed of this fact.

He answered that he had found the facts as stated, and the further sum of $6,400 of the stolen notes had that morning been deposited in the same bank by another party. These two sums, amounting to $7,900, were deposited by persons who could give no satisfactory account for their possession of the notes.

One of the depositors was arrested and held to bail for his appearance at court, and the other has fled the country.

A letter was received from the cashier of a bank in the interior of New York, bearing the date July 27, 1870, stating the fact that note No. H 3,530,198* had come into his possession. This is the only note, of those stolen, that has been heard from, except those that were recovered, as mentioned above, in the city of New York.

It is confidently believed that the remainder of the notes stolen cannot be disposed of without instant detection of the thieves, and that, therefore, the whole amount stolen will eventually be recovered.

(The foregoing was extracted from the Report of the Treasurer of the United States, as reported to the 41st Congress. F. E. Spinner was then Treasurer. Research to find out whether the remaining $12,090 was ever recovered has proved futile.

Next week we will bring you the story of another robbery, reported in the same year, but under different circumstances. Ed.)

STATEMENT OF FACT

Compare the cost of your advertising and the cost of the subscription we ask you to pay with any other weekly publication. You will find that there is really no comparison, you really save when you place your ads in Coin Trade Advertiser.

Look at the quality you are buying, compare the readability of the ads placed in Coin Trade Advertiser with the other publications. You won't find any small, squeezed together, hard to read ads anywhere in Coin Trade Advertiser. We make your ads more readable, and the result is that more are read and more ads answered.

Compare cost over a period of time, how many times a quarter do you advertise? How much is it costing you each week, per copy, to receive the publication? What is the publication trying to do for you, the collector and dealer?

Coin Trade Advertiser costs you only 2½¢ per copy, per week. A twenty-five word ad costs you only 87½¢ per week. Compare this with any other weekly numismatic publication; they can't bring you the savings Coin Trade Advertiser offers you.

Convention A Success

Another successful New England Numismatic Association Convention has just been completed at Springfield, Mass., with a record of 675 registrations. Our host "The Springfield Coin Club", organized in 1912, are to be congratulated for their fine achievement. Although beset by "The Massachusetts Blue Laws" which crept into the activities at the last minute, there were no complaints from either members or dealers.

In the Educational Division which was set up for both seniors and junior exhibitors, there were 25 entries, covering such categories as Ancients; So-Called-Dollars; Colonial; Overrun countries of Europe; Odd and Curious; Paper Money, plus many others. There were many firsts of a blue ribbon for each of nine categories.

The grand awards for best to show went to: First: James Clapp, Jr., Boston, Mass., "Ancients"; Second: Howard E. Davis, Sr., E. Hartford, Conn., "Colonial"; Third: Mrs. Francis D'Esopo, W. Hartford, Conn., "Overrun Countries of Europe".

Our speaker for the banquet was Harry Lessin, of Norwalk, Conn., who gave a nice run-down of The-So-Called-Dollars, and showed slides.

The business meeting on a Sunday, which was well attended, brought many changes for our Convention activities, among which was a 3-day Convention, thus giving our dealers a full 2 days and evenings of Bourse activities.

Another tip-top Convention is in the planning for year 1962.

It will be held at Northampton, Mass., in the heart of the "Colonial Berkshires". The Northampton Coin Club will be the host club and have chosen for their convention officers:

Fritz Tidlund, President; Edward Merski, Vice President; Francis Klees, Treasurer; Howard E. Davis, Sr., Executive-Secretary; John Skribiski, Convention Chairman.

This will be a three day Convention, dates tentatively set for October 19, 20 and 21st, 1962, at the Hotel Northampton and Wiggins Tavern, where everything is served in the "Old New England Colonial atmosphere".

Plan now to spend your next October's Numismatic Vacation in an old New England Village with its traditional background. From time to time we will tell you in this column of developments of progress of this wonderful Convention.

Nickels Worth

some of the stuff being offered for sale today.

At least those of us who use a "Date Restorer" can detect a restored date coin."

Wendel Deller,
Eugene, Oregon

Thank you for your thoughts and comment, Mr. Deller. I'll answer you this way—The type and condition of a coin for inclusion in a collection is a personal decision. If you or any other collector wants a restored date coin in your collection, that's for you to decide. But, and I say again, to remove a restored date coin from a collection and offer it for sale is, in my opinion wrong!

What premium can you place on a restored date coin? What is the value of a restored 1913S, variety 2, Buffalo Nickel?

If the coin is in good condition, can you offer it for sale at catalog? What do you sell a restored date coin for, at what price?

These are the questions the new collectors ask when they hear of these restored dates, and chemicals for restoration of coins. What answers do we give them?

To restore the beauty of a coin by use of chemicals is not wrong, if you intend to enjoy the restored beauty yourself and share this beauty by displaying what you have done for others to see, but, and I say it again, restored date coins, whether they be nickels, dimes or quarters, they should not be sold above their face value.

Thanks again, Mr. D, see you all next week. M.B.
